Deteriorating stone headwall and concrete box culvert; stone loose in spots with vegetation growing out of the headwall, including a large caliper tree on the north side of the street; several black 6" corrugated plastic hoses through the base of the headwall on the south side of the street (upgradient from what appears to be a homemade fisheries operation/run of some sort).

The Geographic Roadway Runoff Inventory Program, or GRRIP, provides an analysis of roadway drainage facilities, located in environmentally sensitive areas, on defined state and local roads. The computer based mapping project included twenty-five separate categories of environmental information, along with other base map layers, to create an overview of a town's environmental and road network information.
